

APGO – FGC

Summary of Experience/ Expertise:

Dr. Brett Worly started his Women's Sexual Health Clinic at The Ohio State University in 2015. He joined a Subcommittee for Sexual Health Education founded by Dr. Mark Woodland, a member of the CREOG Committee on Resident Education and now CREOG Chair. Dr. Worly and colleagues performed a nation-wide assessment of Sexual Health Education for OB/GYN Residents, assessing both Program Directors and Residents in 2016-2017. Dr. Worly and Dr. Maria Manriquez presented an hour-long talk at the ACOG Annual Clinical Meeting in 2017, on Sexual Health Education, and Dr. Worly received second place for his Oral Presentation abstract at SAGOG in 2017, presenting this data.

Workshop abstract:

Background: Sexual Health Education is lacking in many medical schools and OB/GYN Residency programs, with many residents feeling like this should be a priority, but most inadequately prepared for graduation and practice.

Workshop Agenda: This workshop aims to identify opportunities for learners in the most challenging topics of sexual health education including: transgender health, sexual health for women with disabilities, sexual trafficking, and cultural competency with female genital cutting. Learners will be able to identify and familiarize themselves with the key information they need and, practice the skills that are most essential to prepare them to teach medical students and residents these challenging topics.

Interactive Component: The workshop will utilize a flipped classroom technique to review challenging issues in transgender health, sexual health for women with disabilities, sexual trafficking, and cultural competency including female genital cutting. We will then proceed to have a small group patient simulation exercise to illustrate difficult scenarios, and give learners practice with the end goal of proficiency in these areas.

Take home product: Learners will bring back to their home institutions proficiency in the most challenging areas of Sexual Health Education. Learners will have the ability to run patient simulations or small group exercises with patient cases, and directly insert lessons learned into their home OB/GYN Resident and Medical Student curriculum.

Precis:

Transgender health, sexual health for women with disabilities, sexual trafficking, and cultural competency including female genital cutting are some of the challenging aspects of sexual health education, and this workshop will transform learners and help them obtain proficiency in these areas.
